September is also known as the seventh month. It marks the ecclesiastical year in the Easter Orthodox Church. It was also a time when many students return to school after the summer holiday in the Northern Hemisphere. September starts on the same day of the week as December every year but does not end on the same day of the week as any other month in the year. Astrologists consider the sapphire to be a gem with healing properties. It's said to encourage truth, loyalty, wisdom and clear thinking.
